Guild Jobs

GM PREPARATION REFERENCE

This reference moves optional-job preparation out of the early reading sequence. Use the main book for the campaign, NPCs, chronology and bestiary. Player notices remain the existing four-per-A4 props. C16 has no supplied poster; S06 needs the linked character's actual description.

Mark each job unavailable, available, accepted, completed or withdrawn. Copper jobs open with the Guild board; story-linked notices wait for their actual trigger. Silver and Gold introduce their new board entries at their respective Pass stages. Gold's cannon commission is pre-battle; wounded, battlefield remains and clean-up work follow the battle. Follow any more specific trigger printed in an entry.

Treat the printed difficulty labels as starting benchmarks. Before play count PCs, meaningful NPC support and Genesis creatures' actual abilities and actions. Tune the active enemy roster and map objectives before the session. Stat blocks remain in the main bestiary; full encounters and their outcomes are here. Use the listed rewards and enemy numbers, adjusting the active roster for your actual party.

Use the job IDs to match entries with the chapter boards and player notices. Book links open the corresponding current page.

C01 / Hunt: Goblins

COPPER / Unrated

Posting: As chapter describes

Hunt: Goblins

Giver / return contact: Sariel / Guild · p. 53. Travel encounters · p. 122 · Map IDs · p. 127. Use the stated reward and the hand-in for the actual outcome.

Copper Pass

> "Goblin horde control required. 25 cp for each pair of ears collected."

The goblins that hit the caravan came from somewhere. The Guild wants the nearest goblin camp, reached by taking the greenhouse route and turning east, broken up.

The camp. A warren dug into a hillside a few hours along the route towards the greenhouse, then east. Three parts, which the party can take one at a time:

Area	Who's there	Difficulty (level 3)
The lookout: a rock above the entrance	4 goblins on watch, half asleep	Easy
The pens: a fenced hollow beside the warren	2 worgs, chained but able to slip free	Easy
The den: the main cave, around a fire pit	A bugbear chief and 4 goblins	Medium

The alarm. If a lookout gets away or anyone shouts, the camp wakes. The worgs are loosed and the den empties towards the noise. Everything fighting at once is deadly, so let the players hear it coming: a horn, then howling, then running feet.

What's in the den: the sacks of food stolen from the caravan in the Prologue, still marked with the Farman stamp, and the camp's few coins. Bram Tallow pays 2 gp a sack to get them back.

Running the camp

- Goblins flee once half of them are down. The chief doesn't; he's cornered in his own den.
- Sneaking works. A party that takes the lookout quietly can deal with each part on its own.
- It's not the only camp. Destroy it, and there's always another in the hills. That's what the bounty is for.

Handing it in (Sariel)

- Done: "Ears in the bag, please, not on the counter. Thank you. I'll count them later. Much later."
- Failed: "Back already, and no ears? Faldor's going to grunt at you. I'd go out the side door."

GM field notes

Return to Sariel at the Guild; Bram Tallow buys recovered Farman sacks at the printed rate. Quietly dealing with the lookout changes the alarm. Record who escaped, what food was recovered and the camp's state. The camp map should make lookout, pens and den legible without making a combined fight unavoidable.

Hunt: Kobolds in the Deep

Giver / return contact: The miners' foreman · p. 105. Travel encounters · p. 122 · Map IDs · p. 127. Use the stated reward and the hand-in for the actual outcome.

Copper Pass

> "Kobolds are attacking the miners as they enter the deep from the old silver caves. We ask the Adventurers' Guild to come and dispatch them before someone is seriously hurt. The group has 4 kobolds, who have been known to set a net trap and then attack whoever's in it. 10 gp per kobold tail collected."

4 kobolds in the tunnels between the old silver caves and the mythril deep. Their net trap is a DC 13 Wisdom (Perception) check to spot; a creature caught in it is restrained (escape DC 12, or cut free). Easy at level 3. These are the first of the kobolds; in the Silver Chapter, more arrive (see The Kobold Caves).

Handing it in (The miners' foreman)

- Done: "That's the deep clear, then. Drinks are on the night shift."

C03 / Missing: Miriam's Hairpin

COPPER / Unrated

Posting: As chapter describes

Job: Miriam's Hairpin

Copper Pass, star

The problem. Miriam's hairpin, about a finger long, silver with a cut stone set in the end, has been snatched by a crow. It's only worth a silver piece, but it's been passed down her family for generations, and she's heartbroken. Gideon posts the job.

Where it is. Crows are drawn to shiny things, and this one carried it back to the Rook's Nest, a ruined outpost north of town, within sight of the founders' tomb (see The Silverwood Region).

After the party accepts: Tormund can explain where the Rook's Nest lies and what the ruined outpost looks like. Before acceptance, keep this as an available lead rather than reading out the solution.

Finding it:

- Asking around the market: someone saw a crow at the window that morning.
- Mirella's smoke cats may have seen it too, if the party asks her.
- Following crows out of town leads to the Rook's Nest.

The Rook's Nest. Crows roost in the ruins by the hundred. It's sheltered and defensible, and makes a good, safe campsite. The crows are noisy and annoying, but not dangerous. Inside the nests: the hairpin, plenty of shiny junk and five strange stone tiles with markings on them.

The Miner's Mart

The crypt puzzle

The five stone tiles in the nest are the Rook's Nest batch for the shield-wall puzzle (Platinum Chapter). Players won't know what they are yet. Let them keep them.

Reward. 10 gp each (Copper star), Miriam's eternal gratitude and a shop where they're always welcome. No discount.

Handing it in (Miriam, with Gideon hovering)

- Done: "My hairpin! Gideon, look! You lovely, lovely people."
- Failed: "Never mind, dears. Gideon will buy me a new one. Won't you, Gideon?"

Rumours About the Mart (d4)

d4	Rumour
1	"Someone tried to steal from Miriam once. She chased him three streets in her slippers."
2	"Gideon's never finished a sentence in his life."
3	"Miriam's been ever so quiet lately. Something's wrong."
4	"Best rope in Silverwood. Don't tell Tormund I said so."

Urgent: the Glassroot Grove Order

Giver / return contact: Grimgar / Thalion · p. 59. Travel encounters · p. 122 · Map IDs · p. 127. Use the stated reward and the hand-in for the actual outcome.

Copper Pass

> "I have an order sat at the wizard's greenhouse that needs collecting and bringing to Thalion at the tavern kitchen: 1 crate of mossy apples, 2 crates of root vegetables, 1 crate of gourds, 1 crate of mixed fruits and 2 crates of bamboo rice. 50 sp for all crates collected before sundown." - Grimgar

Seven crates from the barns at Glassroot Grove, Lord Xanthos's greenhouse on the mountain, to Thalion in the tavern kitchen. An ordinary errand, and a first look at the greenhouse from outside. The barns are as far as anyone goes: the greenhouse itself is closed to visitors.

The tally-keeper. At the barns, an old stone golem checks the crates off a slate. Chime. "Seven crates. Thank you. The Master is grateful for careful hands." GM: the talking golem from the tower (pp. 254, 297); it never names its master.

This job has nothing to do with the mining investigation.

Handing it in (Grimgar)

Mirella sells the herb books that help find them (see the herb pages in the Handout Pack).

• Without* Ampersand's Apothecaria:* a fetch job with a few skill checks and a minor hazard. The quality depends on a DC 13 Wisdom (Survival) check when harvesting: excellent on a 18 or more.

• With the book: use its foraging and harvesting rules.

This job is a natural route from the Guild to Mirella and Ampersand.

Handing it in (Ampersand, through Valor-33)

A juvenile manticore: use the manticore with 45 hit points and only one tail spike volley before it runs out. Hard at level 3. A careful party can bring it down with little damage to the parts. Mirella's prices drop for every part that's burnt, cut through or missing.

Who posted it

It's Lilith Valtair, practising with her family's black pearl before she tries the real thing (Silver Chapter). She asks the party not to destroy the bodies because she feels guilty about disturbing them. If the players meet her in the tavern later, sharp ones may recognise the handwriting, or the guilt.

Copper Pass

> "MISSING: one slime. Small. Rainbow. Answers to Flubs (sometimes). Last seen bouncing towards the lower tier. Please return him safely to Omega Oliver." - Omega Oliver

The poster forgets to mention a reward. Omega didn't think of it.

Where: the gambling hall on the lower tier.

What happened. Flubs followed the smell of spilled ale downstairs and climbed into a dice cup during a game of Miner's Lie. He's still under it, very drunk, glowing softly, and making little illusions of dice that change whenever anyone looks. Two miners are arguing over whether the cup is cursed.

- Asking around the Shaft and Pickaxe points the party downstairs (Pippin saw something "bouncing funny").
- Lifting the cup in the middle of the game starts a small row. Buying the table a round settles it.
- Flubs won't come quietly. He hiccups, turns invisible for a moment, and reappears in someone's bag.

Handing it in (Omega Oliver)

- Done: "FLUBS! You absolute puddle! Thank you, friends. A reward? Oh. Oh dear. Would a song do? Or a riddle?" The party gets a free song or riddle, and Omega's riddles always hide a real clue.

Posting: As chapter describes

Hunt: the Kobold Caves

Running the caves

Follow the five areas and their traps. Kobolds that escape can reach the den. Keep the Trapmaster · p. 176 and the cave map · p. 182 to hand.

Silver Pass, star

> "Kobolds are now attacking the base camp in the deep. Two teams of either 3 or 4 kobolds have been spotted attacking miners and setting traps. Guards are stretched keeping the camp safe. Adventurers will need an understanding of traps. 1,000 gp for stopping the kobolds, and 1,000 gp if you find a way to stop them entering the deep."

The kobolds from the Copper Chapter came back with friends. They've dug into old tunnels near the mythril deep and are raiding the base camp.

These kobolds don't fight fair. They fight with traps: snares, pits, falling rocks and oil-soaked tunnels they set alight. There aren't many of them, but every corridor is dangerous.

What this teaches

- Search for traps. Players who walk in face-first will learn fast.
- Know when to run. A burning tunnel is no place to stand and fight. Retreating is a valid choice.

The caves. Four stretches of tunnel, then the den. Spotting a trap takes a DC 14 Wisdom (Perception) check; disarming one takes a DC 14 Dexterity check with thieves' tools.

Hunt: the Kobold Caves

Area	Trap	Kobolds
1. The entrance	Snares. DC 14 Dexterity save or be hoisted upside down and restrained (escape DC 14, or cut the rope).	2 kobolds with slings, who run deeper once spotted
2. The pit hall	Covered pits, 20 feet deep with spikes. DC 15 Dexterity save or fall: 7 (2d6) bludgeoning plus 11 (2d10) piercing damage.	2 winged kobolds dropping stones from above
3. The rockfall	Falling rocks. A kobold cuts a rope: everyone in a 15-foot square makes a DC 15 Dexterity save, taking 22 (4d10) bludgeoning damage on a failure, or half on a success.	2 kobolds on the rope
4. The oil tunnel	Fire. The floor is soaked in oil. When a kobold throws a torch, the tunnel burns for 1 minute: a creature that enters it or starts its turn there makes a DC 15 Dexterity save, taking 16 (3d10) fire damage on a failure, or half on a success. Thick smoke fills the tunnel.	2 winged kobolds with torches
5. The den	Every trap they have left.	The kobold trapmaster (Bestiary), 2 kobolds and whoever escaped from earlier

What's in the den: stolen mining supplies (lamp oil, rope, timber and tools from several houses), which the Guild returns to their owners for a small reward.

Difficulty: medium for four level 5 characters on its own, hard with the traps.

Handing it in (The miners' foreman)

- Done: "No more fire in the tunnels! You've earned every coin."
- Failed: "They burned another tunnel last night. We need someone who knows traps."

S02 / Exorcism at Dragon's Obelisk

SILVER / Source rating: 2 star(s)

Posting: As chapter describes

Dragon's Obelisk: the banshee

Check the moon

The moon determines conversation or hostility. Clues can come from the bard, Mirella, mining memorials or Drogan. The area encounter table also changes at the full moon.

Exorcism at Dragon's Obelisk

Silver Pass, star star

> "Experienced adventurers only. Some evenings, a banshee can be found around the Dragon Obelisk. Extreme caution is advised if you intend to approach. Only those brave of heart and strong of mind should take on this task. She has been known to fell the strongest with a single scream. 1,100 gp to the party who can exorcise this banshee."

A banshee haunts Dragon's Obelisk, a cliff north-west of town, past the Xanthos Crypt. Her wail has killed travellers.

The story. Generations ago, a legendary blacksmith's daughter loved a young miner. When she heard he'd died in a cave-in, she threw herself from the Obelisk. But he had survived. When he learned what she'd done, he took his own life in grief. Each wore a ring her father made for them.

The key: the moon.

• At full moon, she can be talked to. Show her the truth, his ring or his grave, and she gives up her own ring and finally moves on.

• At any other time, she's a hostile banshee whose wail can kill.

His grave is in the old miners' graveyard, on the road out to the Obelisk. Its stone is carved with a broken heart.

Clues to the story: the bard's songs, Mirella's riddles, the memorials around the mines and Drogan's memories of the old smith.

Reward: the Ethereal Union Rings, the two rings her father made. Each wearer must attune.

Dragon's Obelisk

Dragon's Obelisk: the banshee

• Ring of the Blacksmith's Daughter. Silver, set with a small ruby and engraved with hammers and anvils. Once per day, as an action, the wearer summons a spectral hammer that deals force damage equal to their level to a target within 30 feet. While within 10 feet of the other ring's wearer, they gain a +2 bonus to AC.

• Ring of the Miner's Son. Gold, set with a small emerald and engraved with pickaxes and shovels. Once per day, as an action, the wearer summons a spectral pickaxe that deals force damage equal to their level to a target within 30 feet. While within 10 feet of the other ring's wearer, they have resistance to fire damage.

• Shared Protection. Both wearers have resistance to necrotic damage. When one makes a saving throw to take half damage, the other (within 30 feet) also takes only half. Within 30 feet of each other, both have advantage on saves against being charmed or frightened. Once per day, they can use an action to swap places, as long as they're on the same plane.

• Curse. If one wearer dies wearing their ring, the other makes a DC 15 Wisdom save. On a failure, they're consumed by grief: disadvantage on Wisdom and Charisma checks for 24 hours, and anyone reading their thoughts must pass a DC 15 Intelligence (Investigation) check or believe they're a banshee. If the dead partner isn't brought back within 7 days, the survivor makes another DC 15 Wisdom save; on a failure, their mind breaks for good, and they become an NPC under the GM's control.

Content note

This story involves suicide. Handle it gently, and keep it off-screen for tables that prefer.

Handing it in (Alexander, for the Hallowed Halls)

• Done: "She's at rest. Orathen keeps the scales. Thank you for being gentle with her."

• Failed: "She still wails at night. Some souls need more than force."

S03 / Remains Retrieval: Eadric Stonefist

Posting: As chapter describes

Eadric Stonefist: remains retrieval

Tactical clues

Kill the rider and the ogre goes wild; kill the hexer and bane ends. Keep the rider · p. 174 and the hexer · p. 175 to hand.

Silver Pass, star

> "One of our adventurers has been killed in the field. His Guild pass notified us that its detect life had failed, and sent us his location. A scout has confirmed the death, but was unable to retrieve the remains due to a high beast active in the area. Please return our guildmate. Name: Eadric Stonefist. Description: a tall, muscular human with weathered skin and a thick beard. He wears worn leather armour and carries a longbow and a quiver of arrows on his back, along with a pair of sturdy hunting knives at his belt. Please find his items, so we can return everything to his grieving family."

What happened. He was crushed by an ogre, steered by a goblin rider using hooks through its nose and arms. The goblins are still there.

The goblins fight smart: blowguns, short bows, clubs and blades, plus a small goblin spellcaster casting bane on the party.

Eadric Stonefist: remains retrieval

What this teaches

Goblins with tactics are far more dangerous than goblins in a line. Kill the hexer, and the bane ends. Kill the rider, and the ogre goes wild, attacking whatever's nearest, goblins included.

The fight. A rocky hollow where the Guild member fell, his body still under the rubble.

Who	Where
An ogre with a goblin rider (Bestiary)	In the open, guarding the body
A goblin hexer (Bestiary)	Behind cover at the back, casting bane on the party
8 goblins	Spread around the rocks, with shortbows and blowguns

Difficulty: hard for four level 5 characters, but not deadly. The goblins flee once half of them are down.

The remains. The Guild member's pass is still around his neck. Bring both home, and Sariel pays the reward.

The orc commander

Approaching the camp

The patrol, camp and commander can be tackled separately; combining them makes a deadly encounter. Gorgrak mishandles Vigilance: his use is not the sword's normal power. The bard's song is on p. 149.

Wanted: the Orc Commander

Silver Pass, star

> "An orc commander has appeared in the north-west, past the crypt of the Xanthos. Scouts report more than 10 orcs, with at least 1 able to access the arcane arts. Suitable parties with healers and defence against the arts only. 1,000 gp for the orc commander's head, and 10 sp per pair of orc tusks."

The war band has made camp in the wild country beyond the crypt, on the road to the Obelisk. Like the goblin camp, it can be taken in parts:

Part	Who's there	Difficulty (level 5)
The patrol	4 orcs	Easy
The camp	6 orcs and an orc shaman (use the cult fanatic)	Medium
The commander's tent	The orc commander (use the gladiator) and 2 orcs	Hard

All at once, it's deadly: the poster means it about healers.

The commander is Gorgrak Skullcrusher, and he fights with a greatsword that hates him. It's Vigilance, and it won't work for him: in his hands it's just a greatsword, and once per fight it twists in his grip, turning one of his hits into a miss. Omega Oliver's riddle (The Shaft and Pickaxe) points the party here.

Handing it in (Sariel)

- Done: "Gorgrak Skullcrusher. I'll write it in the ledger: closed. And... is that sword talking?"
- Failed: "Still out there? Then the north road stays shut. Faldor will want to talk to you."

On recovery, use Vigilance's attunement, memories and pass progression · p. 151. The camp plan is on p. 186.

The riddle of the sword. Once the party has heard of the orc commander (Silver Chapter), Omega has a riddle for them:

The orc commander

In a lair of green, where orcs do thrive, A weapon of power, but not yet alive. With a name that tells of its deadly aim, It longs to be wielded, to feel the same.

The sword was once free, in the hands of a hero, But now it is bound to a new master's ego. The orc chief holds it, but it does not comply, For it yearns for a warrior with a righteous eye.

In the orc commander's grasp you'll find A blade of legend, strong and fine. But heed my words, and take great care, For that greatsword holds a hateful glare.

Its name is Vigilance, make no mistake. It longs for justice, but hates to take. In the hands of evil, it broods and seethes, Its magic twisted, its will bereaved.

Omega's song (GM): this verse is sung by the bard after the party has heard of the orc commander and asks him about the sword. It belongs with this quest for reference; the commander does not recite it. Do not perform it automatically on a first Copper tavern visit.

Vigilance's sentience, history and Pass progression remain in the main book: Vigilance.

Lilith's disappearance

When Lilith vanishes

Post Tarquin's notice after she disappears. He wants the pearl, not simply his sister's safety. The party's response determines whether they find her alive.

Her Brother

Tarquin Valtair (tiefling). Rich, snooty, weak and surrounded by bodyguards. He thinks money means people do what he says. He has posted a wanted notice for his sister on the Guild board: wanted alive, for questioning about a theft from the Valtair family, 1,000 gp for her capture. He doesn't say the theft is a black pearl.

He wants her back, but what he really wants is the pearl.

Lilith's disappearance

Missing: Lilith Valtair

Later in the chapter, Lilith stops coming to the tavern. Her brother's notice goes up. She went to the catacombs of the Xanthos Crypt at night (see The Silverwood Region) and used the pearl. But the strongest pearl was strong because Vartius had tampered with it: near the founders' tomb, it doesn't raise one obedient corpse. It wakes the catacombs' dead, and they turn on her. GM: if anyone researches why her pearl is stronger, the Valtair records and the tiefling bargain explain nothing.

Players who did the hairpin or gathering jobs already know the way. Others can learn it from the Guild, the bard or Lilith's brother.

If the party goes after her (the best route):

- They fight through the crypt's restless dead and find Lilith alive but hurt.
- She tells them her story: her ancestor Saraphina, the founders and why she came.
- She carries some of Saraphina's belongings, including a pouch of 10 stone tiles for the crypt puzzle.
- Her brother pays the 1,000 gp reward. He tries to haggle it down because she's "damaged". He is a terrible person.

If the party ignores it (the backup route):

- Her brother goes himself. He comes back hurt, alone, his bodyguards gone, and begs the adventurers to help.
- The abomination is still there. When the party reaches her, Lilith is dead.
- Once the abomination falls, her brother grabs the pearl from her body and runs. That's all he ever wanted.
- The party finds Saraphina's belongings on her body, including the pouch of 10 stone tiles.

Either way, the party ends up with what they need for the founders' trail.

The crypt

The catacombs can be explored now. The sealed Tomb of the Founders cannot be entered until the party solves the crypt puzzle (Platinum Chapter).

What carries forward

Record Lilith's fate, who holds the pearl and the recovered 10 tiles. If the party skips Lilith's story entirely, Tarquin later hands them her pouch unasked: he only wanted the pearl, and he wants nothing of hers. The catacombs can be explored; this is not an early opening of the sealed founders' tomb. The abomination encounter · p. 158 follows.

The personalised Blackwood notice

The poster. A few days later, a new notice goes up on the Guild board, with a description that matches the linked character exactly:

> "Wanted alive. The Blackwoods have received information that a criminal known to be dangerous has been sighted in the area of Silverwood. [Description of the linked character.] They stole something of great value to the Blackwoods, and are the only one living who knows its location, so they must not be harmed. If you spot this individual, please notify Callum Dark at the Blackwood estate in Mithrilhold village. 100 gp for information that leads to their detainment."

If the linked character is the Runner (Session Zero), this is what they stole. If they're the Adopted Child, the "theft" is a lie to get them home.

This is the family's hostile notice about the linked character, not a Guild commission to hunt another invented NPC. Use the actual character description before printing notice S06. The family's recognition and retaliation follow the investigation's real outcomes.

Where: The edge of the Feywoods.

Mindleaf (psychic, Uncommon) protects against charm and fear. Dreamroot (psychic, Rare) brings prophetic dreams, and puts anyone who touches it bare-handed to sleep for 1d4 hours. The Feywoods are still dangerous at Silver.

Without Ampersand's Apothecaria*, use* Gathering Jobs (Region file).

Where: The miners' graveyard, on the road to the Obelisk. Best at night, when they open.

Gravepetal (necrotic, Uncommon) frightens. Corpsebloom (necrotic, Rare) heals the undead and harms the living, and stinks. The Halls pay the full rate even though they burn them. Ampersand would pay more. Whether the party sells to him instead is up to them.

Without Ampersand's Apothecaria*, use* Gathering Jobs (Region file).

Where: The Cinderreach. Cryosap in the Frostfang Peaks.

Sparkspore and Charpod (fire, Uncommon) explode. Scorchvine (fire, Rare) binds and burns. Cryosap (cold, Ultra Rare) freezes everything nearby. Every handful delivered before the battle gives Zoltan's cannon one special shell for the battle: that shot deals an extra 2d8 fire damage. A handful of Cryosap makes a frost shell instead: creatures that fail the save are also restrained until the end of their next turn. Edda Morrow is worried sick. Her husband Jory, an independent miner, hasn't come home in a week. He'd been struggling: rising rent, late payments and debts to his suppliers.

The truth: Jory is safe. Out of work and ashamed, he took a Blackwood offer of a job, a bed and hot meals in their workers' lodgings, and couldn't face telling Edda. He's grateful to the Blackwoods and won't hear a word against them.

Job 1: The Forgotten Lunch

Day two. Take Pell Garrow, a Farman clerk at the depot, the lunch he "forgot".

• Who looks guilty: Farman. Sloppy, or skimming.

• What the party can find: the depot dispatch book and the returned dockets (Handout: Farman Depot). Base camp is always one meal sack short, and that really is Pell: he takes a sack every few days for his sister's children. Loads booked to the East yard arrive badly short, and grease drums nobody sent turn up with them. Every East yard load was booked by W.H., the dispatcher Wendel Hask.

• The Blackwood thread (faint): the East yard is a spare store the Blackwoods kindly lent while base camp is re-roofed. That sounds generous, not guilty. Players who visit the village later may spot Farman sacks at the Blackwood soup kitchen.

Job 2: The Replacement Parts

Day two. Deliver parts to Hobb Tinsley, foreman of the Darnell repair yard.

• Who looks guilty: Darnell. Shoddy parts.

• What the party can find: the yard work book (Handout: Darnell Repair Yard). Hobb is gruff, proud and furious. He kept the snapped axle, and it was sawn part-way through. Darnell really did fit cheap "seconds" pins to one cart, which muddies the water. Wagons C, F and H carry the same scratched marks. (Their meaning comes out in the Silver Chapter.)

• The Blackwood thread (faint): the axles were fitted by "L. Irons + 2", volunteers "from the soup kitchen crowd" who helped clear the backlog for free. Cart 12 is still working the ore run and stands overnight in the base camp cart line (see The Village Diary, day 4).

> Then: a returning wagon is attacked under Ursell escort. The guards swear the beasts ran straight past them.

COPPER / Investigation cover job

Job 3: The Escort Duty

Ride along on a return run, or deliver a new rota to Ursell.

• Who looks guilty: Ursell. Useless, or bribed. Their rota clerk, Corra Lusk, really has been changing shifts without signed orders to pay off a debt.

• What the party can find: bait paste worked into the axle grease, and a bait attack on the way (wolves or giant rats). Zoltan at Ampersand's or Mirella can name the rare ingredient, hollowhart musk, and the one broker who imports it: Penhallow, on a client account. The wagon ledger (Handout: Wagon Escorts) shows a pattern.

• The Blackwood thread (strong): every attacked wagon was escorted* out *by the Blackwoods, and the bait is in grease, like the drums from Job 1. This is the first time the "helpers" line up with the trouble, and the *earliest a sharp table should suspect them.

Job 4: The Mine Inspection

Deliver timber, or escort an inspector, to the Valerion workings.

• Who looks guilty: Valerion. Negligent, and the foreman is covering up his mistakes out of fear for his job.

• What the party can find, by any route:

• The twins' ledger (Handout: Mine Attendance): Hilda and Halvar always sign in together, and Hilda writes both names because Halvar can't write. But on the evening before each cave-in, "Halvar" signs in alone, late, in a different hand. Someone came in disguised as him. The ledger is kept by Tobble Ambersand, who'll happily show it to anyone who mentions Zoltan or Faldor.

• The incident reports (Handout: Cave-In Reports) give the dates and places of the falls.

• The gate rota (Handout: Gate Watch Roster): Leif Irons keeps turning up at posts he isn't listed for, with no signed relief chit. After the beast alarm on 17 Zunith, before the party arrived, he was admitted to the infirmary, hurt at a gate he was never assigned to. Check the actual attendance annotations against the planned rota; by the third-fall branch he may be out on light duty.

• The Blackwood thread (strong): Leif is a Blackwood guard, and his name was on the axles in Job 2.

SS5 / Job 5: The Ledger Collection

COPPER / Investigation cover job

Posting: Sariel offers cover work as the investigation and Village Diary permit. Follow the actual third-fall branch.

Job 5: The Ledger Collection

Fetch the ore weights for the Mining Council.

• Who looks guilty: Penhallow. Tax fraud. Every ore lot is sold through their account, and their clerk Edmund Pryce wants the Lord's tenth taken on the lower village weights.

• What the party can find: the weigh house and receiving books (Handout: Ore Weighing Ledger). Ore only goes missing when a relief crew took over the load on the road, and every relief chit is countersigned "C.D."

• The Blackwood thread: the relief crews are Blackwood, and C.D. is Callum Dark. That's a name to carry into Silver.

Not every job is needed

If the party works it out at job three, jobs four and five become corroboration, and Sariel still wants them. If they never take a job at all, the same clues can turn up through rumours, events and their own digging.

The Escort Rota

Guards escort a wagon out to the mines, guard the mine for a shift, then escort the next available wagon back. Different houses take turns.

The attacks happen on the return journey, so the returning guards (often Ursell, Farman or Valerion) get the blame.

But compare the rota: every attacked wagon was escorted* out *by the Blackwoods. Not every Blackwood wagon gets attacked. It's a pattern, not proof.
